LET'S REVISIT

Avoiding a bad move today can make a good outcome tomorrow.

IMAGINATE

Imagine. A verb related to the act of imagining, another verb. Imagine, as per masturbate, meditate, assassinate, innovate or cogitate.

I struggled to get my head around this grammatical black hole. “Imagining” is either a transitive or intransitive verb as would be “imagine”. It’s as though the verb “imagine” doesn’t exist because imagining is not seen as a routine task done the same way by many people and certainly not something that can be planned.

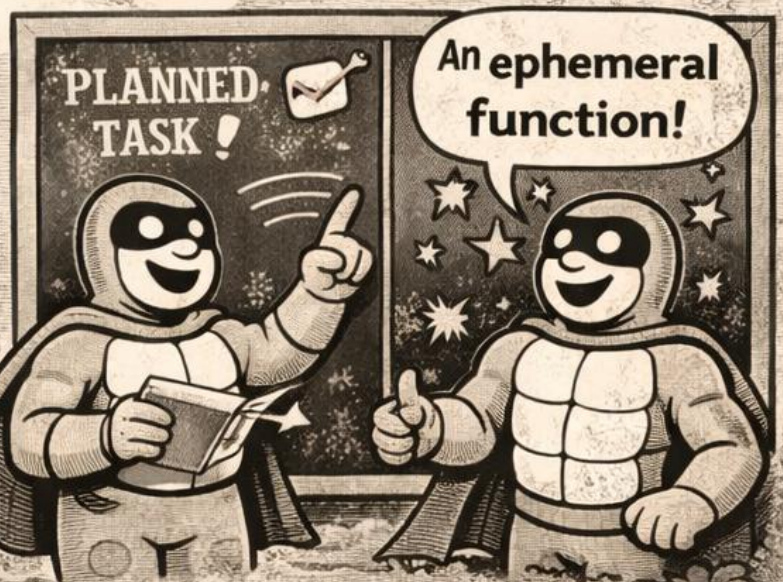

As per:

I am going to meditate

I am going to imagine

Compare this to:

I am going to imagine:

AUTOPORTAPHOBIA

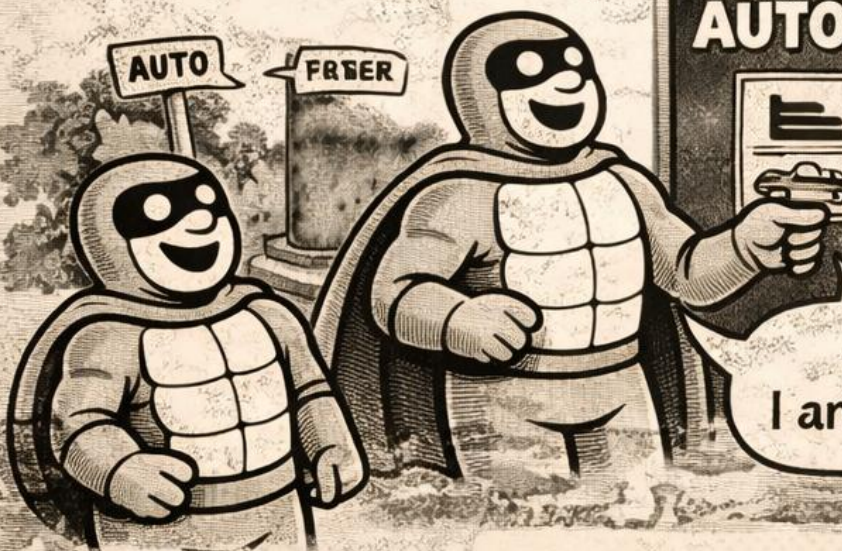

the fear that cyclists have of car doors.

Oh, they've got good reason to be scared!

AAUUUGH!

I struggled to get my head around this grammatical black hole. "Imagining" is either a transitive or intransitive verb as would be "Imaginate."

A schvaddia task!
I am going to imagine.
